

ABSTRACT

A computing device may define a virtual interface to provide an interface for a Web service implementation. The computing device may also create a Web service definition to specify a behavior of the defined virtual interface. The computing device may then provide a Web service archive that includes the virtual interface and the Web service definition.